WEDDING TROUSSEAU INFORMATION

Wedding stationery should reflect a couple's unique style.

Below is an explanation of the typical wedding stationery trousseau components to help with this process.

BEFORE THE WEDDING

- Save the Dates

When planning a wedding it is best to alert guests well in advance of the upcoming nuptials so they can plan to attend. Save the Dates may be printed in a similar style to the invitation or may be more casual in nature. It is best to send out Save the Dates six or more months prior to the event. Include the couple's names, date and place of the wedding.

- Rehearsal Dinner Invitations

Custom suggests that the groom's parents host the rehearsal dinner and therefore, issue the invitations. In circumstances when the groom's family is unable to host the event, the bride's family, close relative or the couple themselves may host. Rehearsal Dinner invitations are often styled to match the wedding invitations, however, they should never compete with or upstage them. These invitations are sent two weeks before the wedding.

- Pre-Wedding Thank You Notes

A couple may begin to receive gifts from close friends and family or be honored at an engagement party very soon after the engagement. It is essential to have stationery on hand to be able to promptly send a note of thanks. Traditionally, a bride's Thank You Note was a foldover with her maiden monogram blind embossed on the front or her maiden name engraved or printed on the front. This type of elegant and formal note is still relevant for today's bride, but there are many choices of styles that can be customized to best reflect the bride's (and couple's) personality.

THE INVITATIONS

Wedding Invitations set the tone for the wedding. Not only do they tell guests where and when the wedding is being held, they subtly indicate the degree of formality of the wedding through style, paper choice and wording. Typestyle, motif and monogram choices along with print method, ink color, and envelope lining all combine to create the perfect first impression of a couple's wedding day.

- Envelopes

Tradition dictates the use of double envelopes. The larger, gummed envelope carries the host's address, either printed or blind embossed on the flap. The guest's name and address are written on the face. The smaller, ungummed envelope holds the invitation and enclosure cards. The guest's name is repeated on this inside envelope, using his/her title and surname.

ENCLOSURE CARDS

- Reception Cards

These small cards invite guests to the reception and provide the time and location. This is particularly helpful if the ceremony and reception are being held at different locations.

- Reply Cards

There was a time when wedding invitations were answered with a handwritten note. Reply Cards have become a more popular convenience, offering space for the guest's name and his/her response, as well as a date by which the reply is requested. Stamped return envelopes are typically included, pre-addressed to whom the reply is sent.

- Ceremony Cards

If a large reception with a small ceremony is planned, the invitation to the reception is the larger card, accompanied by a smaller ceremony card to a select few.

THE CEREMONY

- Wedding Programs

Programs are often provided to guests at the ceremony so that they can follow the order of events. Often included are the names of the wedding party, a listing of readings and music, a background on any special traditions, remembrances and thank yous.

THE RECEPTION

- Table Cards and Place Cards

Table Cards efficiently direct guests to their appointed seats. Displayed in the reception entryway, the envelope bears the guest's name and the enclosed card provides the table number. Place Cards are provided at each setting, indicating the guest's seat at the table.

- Menus

Menu Cards announce the meal that has been planned for the guests. They can also serve as elegant place cards when the guest's name is written on the menu.

AFTER THE WEDDING

- Wedding Announcements

Wedding Announcements are sent to relatives and friends who were not sent invitations to the wedding or ceremony. Weddings are traditionally announced by the bride's parents, but may also be announced by the couple.

- Informals

These small foldover notes offer the opportunity to express appreciation to those who were kind enough to send gifts. In addition to conveying appreciation, Thank You Notes also let recipients know that the gifts they sent were received and not lost in transit. They should be sent as soon after the wedding as possible.

There is no end to the number of style choices for Informals. Tradition dictates the use of a foldover note with a monogram on the front. When the monogram has a larger initial in the middle, that center initial represents the bride's married name. The left initial represents the first name and the right initial is the maiden or middle name.

Informals bearing the couple's titles or duograms (incorporating the couple's initials) are appropriate for less traditional informals.

ADDITIONAL COMPONENTS

- Direction Cards and Maps

Out-of-town guests will appreciate receiving driving directions to the wedding and reception, even if they have a GPS. Direction Cards should include explicit directions from major roads. Map Cards, featuring major roads and landmarks, are also useful and can be a fun component of the trousseau. They are enclosed with the invitations.

- Accommodation Cards

Accommodation Cards are enclosed with invitations sent to out-of-town guests who will need to make hotel reservations. The card lists recommended hotels, their phone numbers and websites, and indicates if rooms have been reserved and under what name.

- Small Enclosure Cards and Event Cards

Pew Cards and Within the Ribbon Cards are used to indicate special seating for your guest and are presented to the usher for seating. Small Enclosures and Event Cards can also be used to share website information, communicate parking details, or convey other special features about the wedding events.
